CALL FOR CURRICULUM UNITS, eLEARNING PROJECTS, eCONFERENCE PROPOSALS AND ARTICLES OF THE YAMWEB® EDUCATION NETWORK

The YAMweb@ Education Network invites classroom teachers, school administrators, educational consultants, instructional designers, and parents to join/submit the following proposals and articles for inclusion and sharing across the Network:

1. Resource Articles for The Journal of Mobile Teaching - Share knowledge and experience (both in practice and research) on learning and teaching in the age of mobile.
2. Curriculum Units for Mobile Devices - Share experience in the classroom with an activity designed for learning on a mobile device in a classroom setting.
3. eConference Proposals - Take interest in teaching and sharing across the world of mobile with an eConference.
4. eLearning Proposals - Apply skills in distance education design with a student activity in a distance learning format for independent study or home learning.
5. Student Classroom Projects in Digital Formats - The Young Author's Magazine Anthology® is now part of the Network and will publish selected student projects for sharing among students and families.

The YAMweb® Education Network aims to provide education resources for classroom teaching, distance learning, and home learning activities. Access to the resource is free from any digital device including a PC, laptop, tablet, smartphone or e-reader (Kindle Fire® and Nook®).

The deadline for each category is ongoing and may include proposals for the School Years 2014, 2015 and 2016.

Proposals may be submitted digitally for all resource categories. Submission guidelines may be obtained on <http://yamweb.org/Call.pdf>.
